General Workout Guide lines

Different people will have different fitness levels, so to begin with, start slow then work up to higher reps, heavier bands or a combination of bands.

Complete between 1 to 3 sets of 3 to 10 repetitions (reps) for each exercises, (more advanced users may want to complete 8 to 12 reps).

Rest time is important, make sure to rest for at least 30 - 60 seconds between each exercise set. Only perform each exercise set for a maximum of 2 - 3 times a week, this will allow your body recover properly.

Allow between 24 - 48 hours of rest (not doing exercises relating to those muscle groups) between each routine when using your exercise band loops.

It is important to focus on completing exercise with good form. This is much more important than using heavier bands or doing more reps. Good form will allow you to work your muscles correctly, and the slow movements will mean you are able to focus on your form.

Start by using the lower strength bands and only move up to heavy bands when you feel you have progressed enough to correctly perform the exercises with good form when using a heavier band.

If you find you are starting to tire and are unable to perform the exercises correctly or with good form, try increasing your rest times or move to a lower strength band.

The Product Adventure Exercise bands loops can be used in many locations, but make sure you are on an even surface and have enough room around you to move and that you will not slip over.
